A LINK WITH OLD SHANGHAI

A Seamen's Cemetery in Pootung Village

Surrounded by busy factories and squalid Chinese huts of the poorest type, lies the Pootung Cemetery, a patch of land measuring slightly over three acres in area, and containing the bodies of foreign seamen who died here before 1900. Situated about half a mile inland from a point directly opposite The Bund, it is reached by a winding street which, incidentally, is infested by hordes of the most mangy dogs imaginable, and, despite its comparative nearness to the centre of the bustling metropolis of Shanghai, it is known to but a few foreign residents.

Very few burials have taken place there since 1900, with the exception of the re-interment last Thursday of six men whose bodies had been buried in a plot not properly a part of the cemetery. Despite the fact that it is rarely, if ever, visited, it is kept in a wonderful state of tidiness by the Superintendent of Municipal Cemeteries.

Ancient Memorials

A cinder-covered path runs through the centre of the cemetery, with the graves nestling amid the trees on either side. Among the stone headstones are several wooden memorials on which the carving is as clear today as it was when they were put up over sixty years ago.

In this cemetery there lie the bodies of nearly 1,000 men. Very few burials have taken place in the cemetery since the year 1900.

The Cemetery and those who lie there are largely forgotten. There are some most interesting memorials. How many know, for instance, that there is a memorial to thirty men of Her Britannic Majesty's 31st Regiment (now the 1st Batt, East Surreys). The memorial, which is a cairn built of blocks of hewn granite, is inscribed as follows:—"Sacred to the memory of 30 N.C.O.'s and men of H.B.M. 31st Regiment, who died in Shanghai, 1862. Erected by their Officers"

There is another memorial to a young sailor lad, which reads as follows:—"Sacred to the memory of G.E.G. Glasing. Born at Mendlesham Suffolk. Served in the bark Havelock Died September 24th, 1863, at the age of 19." The following inscription is written below:—"Kind friends, look down upon my grave and read that far from home I died young. Take warning and be prepared, for you know not how soon your time may come."

There are several interesting wooden memorials, testifying to the fact that British oak can stand the rigours of the Chinese climate. The carving is as clear to-day as it was 60 years ago. One of the best preserved reads:—"Sacred to the memory of Amos Fairlamb, late Carpenter of H.M. Navy Yard, who departed this life August 2nd, 1871, aged 34. Erected by his friends in the Navy Yard."

At the little wicket entrance is a plot of fine grass surrounding a small bush, all that remains to mark the site of the Seamen's Church which once stood there. The Rev. C. H. Butcher, who came to China in 1864 was instrumental in building this, the first Seamen's Church, and at one time a congregation of over 250 men was not unusual. Mr. E. H. Oliver designed the church, which was built by the late Mr Henry Lester and completed in 1867. Prior to that date, services for seamen were held on the Bethel, formerly the barque Euphrates, which was brought from Messrs. Hall & Holtz at a cost of Tls 1,250, and moored off Pootung Point.

A Popular Church

The chaplain's report for 1870 gives an excellent idea of the popularity of the little Pootung Church. On many Sundays, he says, the building could not hold the congregation, and many had to listen through the open windows. A new library and a museum were built.

Only a few years later the tide turned. Steam began to replace sail, steamers were coming out by way of the Suez Canal, and the numbers of foreign seamen consequently diminished. After 1872, the work was taken over by the assistant at Trinity Church (now Holy Trinity Cathedral), and three years later by the Dean himself. The last recorded report of the Pootung Church is dated 1879, when the average congregation had dropped to thirty.

Now Forgotten

The Church of S. Andrew in Broadway was opened in 1904, and thus marked the end of the little church in Pootung. No longer was a sampan service needed to ferry seamen across the river to the services, and, as the years sped by, it became more and more forgotten by the residents of Shanghai, until now only a small handful even know of its existence or for what it stood. Even fewer know where it really was, although it is a picturesque little spot, reminiscent of Shanghai as it was, and an oasis in a desert of squalor, dirt, and poverty.

THE SEAMEN'S CEMETERY IN POOTUNG

"N.-C. Herald" Photos.

Contains not the bodies of nearly a thousand seamen buried before 1900, the Pootung Cemetery was seen almost forgotten by the Shanghai of to-day

In a Pootung village not far from the busy waterfront of Shanghai lies the little Seamen's Cemetery of Pootung. Very few burials have taken place in the last thirty years, and an idea of the majority may be taken from the above tombstone, the inscription on which reads: "In memory of Henry Clay Budington, late Second Officer of the American Bq. Lucy E. Ashbey. Native of New London, Conn., U. S. of A. Died at Shanghai 18 Oct. 1861. Aged 38 years."

OLD CHINESE MUSIC TO BE RENDERED

Lyceum Booked for Concert on November 1

The Shiao Chao Chinese Music Research Institute, in celebration of its tenth anniversary, is going to give its first public performance, which will take place at the Lyceum Theatre on Friday evening, November 1. The following list of patrons have kindly consented to act as an advisory committee for this concert: Mrs. Eric Clark, Mrs. Chester Fritz, Mrs. Hsu Long-si, Baroness Ungern Sternberg, Mrs. C. H. Wang, Dr. E. R. Cressy, Dr A. Glathe, Mr T'eng Kuei, and Dr Y. S. Tsao.

The Shiao Chao Chinese Music Research Institute was founded in 1925. Its small but select group of members have been outstanding because of their scholastic attitude toward music.

ART TREASURES ON WAY THROUGH

Curios for Exhibition in London on Ship

Carrying with him priceless curios, which will grace the exhibition of ancient Chinese art in London in November, Mr Tomoji Okada, Commissioner of Japanese exhibits at the London display, passed through Shanghai on Monday morning in the ss. Yasukuni Maru.

Among the 48 objects d'art in Mr Okada's safekeeping there were a copper kettle and cooking utensils of the Chow dynasty. The exhibits were lent by the Japanese Imperial Museum, the Tokyo Arts College, and other organizations and individuals.

The Shanghai Perfume Factory Owners Association has received an order from the Ministry of Industry directing it to instruct all perfume factory owners to apply for registration without delay.

THE BRITISH BOXER INDEMNITY REFUND

Big Loan Asked for Wenchi Newsprint Factory

Shanghai, Sept. 21.

The Finance Committee of the Board of Trustees for the administration of the British Boxer Indemnity Refund held an enlarged meeting here yesterday to consider various applications for loans. Mr. T. K. Tseng presided, and also present were:—Messrs. R. Calder Marshall, Chen Chi-tsai, Yen Te-ching and W. S. King. Mr Szutu Hsi, representing the Ministry of Industry in connection with the proposed newsprint factory at Wenchi, Chekiang; and Messrs. Fan Ming-hsin and Hsu Teng-chieh, representing the National Reconstruction Commission.

Following explanations by representatives of the National Reconstruction Commission, the meeting approved in principle the application for a loan of £36,000 for the purchase of further equipment for the Nanking Electric Power Works, and for another loan of £1,000 in material and $35,000 in cash for the purchase of equipment for the electrical experimental station.

A lengthy report was made by Mr. Szutu Hsi on the projected newsprint factory at Wenchi. He said the total capital of the factory has been fixed at $4,500,000, of which $600,000 will be taken up by commercial shareholders. Of the Government shares of $3,900,000, the Chekiang Provincial Government has signified its readiness to subscribe $200,000, leaving a balance of $3,700,000. It was proposed to apply for a loan from the British Boxer Indemnity Refund, or to order the machinery for the factory from Britain, with the Board of Trustees as guarantor. In view of the large sum involved, the Finance Committee decided to hold another meeting on October 4 to consider the proposal.—Kuo Min.

NEW U. S. C.-IN-C. ARRIVING

Rear Admiral Murfin Takes Over on October 1

Yokohama, Sept. 21.

Rear Admiral O. G. Murfin, who will succeed Rear-Admiral Frank B. Upham as Commander-in-Chief of the American Asiatic Fleet, arrived here to-day from the United States by the ss. President Coolidge, en route to Shanghai.

Commenting on the abandonment of a plan to replace the flagship of the fleet, the 10,000 ton cruiser Augusta, with the 7,000 ton cruiser Omaha, Rear Admiral Murfin said it was because a vessel under 10,000 tons was impractical for the purpose.

Rear-Admiral Murfin will take over his duties from Rear-Admiral Upham in Shanghai following the return there of the U.S.S. Augusta on October 1.

Mrs. Murfin and Miss Winifred Murfin accompany the new Commander-in-Chief.—Rengo.

NEW PULLERS' AID BOARD MEETS

Mr. Massey Unanimously Elected Chairman

The first meeting of the new Board of Management of the Pullers' Mutual Aid Association was held on Tuesday, Sept. 17. There were present Messrs. L. Todnem, Anson T. Wong, P. W. Massey, Dr T. T. Chiu, Y. S. Han and Col. M. T. Tebou, constituting more than a quorum.

Mr. Massey was unanimously elected chairman for the ensuing year. In taking the chair he expressed regret at the absence of the two representatives of the Owners' Association and the two appointees of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and the Chinese Ratepayers' Association and said he hoped that all members would make it a point to attend all future board meetings, it being very desirable to get thoroughly representative opinions on all matters brought forward.

The statistical reports of the association's activities were presented by the general secretary. They were considered as denoting a healthy growth and showed that the services provided for the members were generally appreciated. The attendances for the month of August were as follow:—

Medical Service (treatments given)	13,083
Attendance at Educational Classes	2,894
Lectures, educational talks and movies	8,790
Tea lobbies	48,088
Reading rooms	13,079
Game rooms	26,972
Baths taken by pullers	24,343
Beds occupied in the dormitory	6,591
Relief cases	347
District nursing	309
Dining room	2,759
Barber service	390

Subsequently the following committee for the year were duly nominated, consideration being given to all cases where members' preference for certain committees had been intimated to the general secretary:—

1. Programme, House and Staff Committee.
2. Insurance Committee.
3. Clinic Committee.
4. Education Committee.
5. Relief and Special Assistance Committee.

A scheme for the election of two pullers' representatives to the board was put forward and discussed, and with slight modification was adopted. This will be duly submitted to the Shanghai Municipal Council whose approval, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution, is necessary before the election can take place.

BIG CROWDS WATCH KOO'S TRIAL

French Police Called Out to Maintain Order

The No. 1 court-room of the Second Special District Court was packed on Friday morning when Mr Koo Tso-hsien, a prominent Chinese owning a chain of theatres and stores in the city, appeared on remand to answer a charge of instigating the murder of the late Tang Chia-pan, former manager of the Great World amusement resort, two years ago, preferred against him by the French Police. Streams of persons began to arrive in the court long before the time set for the opening of the hearing and, when the limit of accommodation was reached, big crowds gathered in the street, seeking admission to the court compound.

The situation became so serious that a large squad of officers of the French Police turned out to maintain order. At the conclusion of the hearing, when the accused was ordered to be sent back to a Concession hospital under police surveillance on account of his poor health, the crowds continued to assemble in front of the court and force had to be used to disperse them.

The police advocate asked at the outset of the hearing that a further adjournment be ordered on the ground that fresh investigations would have to be made as the murder of the late Mr. Tang was committed two years ago and a number of witnesses in this case had to be called, which would require a little time. Lawyers for the prisoner expressed their strong objection to the request, saying that the French Police had really insufficient evidence against their client. An eloquent appeal was made by the counsel for the defence for the release of their client on bail if the court wanted to proceed with the case, pointing out that long detention would seriously affect the physical and mental state of the accused who was ill, as well as many commercial enterprises of which the accused was the proprietor. The requests were, however, refused by the Judge, who adjourned the hearing sine die.

The murder of the late Mr. Tang was committed after midnight just outside the Great World amusement resort, at the corner of Avenue Edward VII and Thibet Road. Mr Tang was shot as he was about to enter his motor car. Several persons were arrested in the case and it was during their trial that Mr. Koo was implicated and arrested.

UNIVERSITY OF SHANGHAI

The University of Shanghai has a record attendance this autumn and one of the outstanding personalities in the Student Body is a seventy-five-year old lady, Mrs. William G. Owens, wife of the American visiting Professor. She received her B.A. degree from Bucknell University last year and is now working for her M.A. degree in Sociology. She is a great inspiration to her young school mates on the Riverside campus. The Faculty is greatly strengthened by the addition of outstanding visiting American Professors, Dr William G. Owens and Dr. and Mrs. Edward H. Pruden. Dr. Owens has been a Professor of Chemistry in Bucknell University for 38 years. Dr Pruden received his Ph.D. in English from Edinburgh University and a D.D. from Richmond University. He is Minister of the First Baptist Church, Petersburg, Virginia, and a member of the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. Mrs. Pruden is an accomplished pianist and a graduate of the Cincinnatti Conservatory of Music. They arrived Tuesday, Sept. 17, and have already taken up their work.

BURMA-YUNNAN BORDER COMMISSION

Mr Liang Yu-kao and Mr Yen Min-ich, Chinese members of the Sino-British Burma Frontier Commission, sailed early last Wednesday morning for the south in the ss. President Jefferson. They are expected to reach the Burma-Yunnan border on December 1 to commence the work for the demarcation of the boundary.
